"Take care of my family", the number one request of active deployed service members and the MMFF does just that!

The MMFF makes a difference not only in the lives of the military family, but also improves the morale and safety of our active military personnel.

An Army squad is made up of eight soldiers and when the squad is on patrol, each soldier is dependent on each other for security and safety. When a soldier is distracted because of a financial crisis back home, every soldier on the squad is at risk because the soldier is distracted and not fully engaged in the patrol's mission.

The MMFF helps turn a bad situation into a positive situation for all the soldiers in the squad.

The MMFF provides financial support to cure the financial crisis for the military family at home, this helps reenergize the soldier. The soldier feels the financial burden on the family lifted and feelings of pride because of the support from the community at home. When the soldier is no longer focused on the financial crisis at home, the soldier is able to stay engaged in the mission and protect the other soldiers in the squad to the fullest.

The Foundation honors requests for many types of household expenses. The Foundation has replaced or repaired many furnaces and appliances as well as fixed cars to help get children to school, daycare or the doctor. The Foundation has even paid for the transportation and lodging for the family to visit their soldier in the hospital that may be thousands of miles from home. The Foundation helps with many types of financial crises.
